Nick McArdle

Nick McArdle's career spans more than 3 decades in Australian media.

He started in radio with the Austereo network before 11 years with the Seven Network, based in Sydney, and 13 years with FoxSports.

Over the last decade Nick became the face of FoxSports Rugby as host of Super Rugby, the Rugby Championship, 3 World Cups and the 2013 British and Irish Lions tour of Australia.

Nick is STAN and Channel Nine's Rugby Host and anchors their broadcast of the Super Rugby competition each year, as well as Wallaby and Wallaroo Test Match broadcasts.

Nick has also covered 3 Summer and Winter Olympics, 2 Commonwealth Games, World Athletics and World Swimming Championships as well as World Alpine Skiing.

He's reported on and hosted a number of Australian Cricket tours including the 2003 World Cup in South Africa and the 2001 and 2009 Ashes series in England, as well as the 2024 Paris Olympic & Paralympic Games broadcast.

Nick's business McArdle Media Group specialises in content creation to help Australian businesses tell their story.
